For the First Time: 25% of Cal Poly Students are Latinx

Cal Poly has reached a significant milestone in its quest for Hispanic Serving Institution designation, as Fall 2024 enrollment numbers show Hispanic/Latino student enrollment at the required 25% for the first time ever. This achievement brings Cal Poly one step closer to official HSI designation, which requires maintaining this 25% threshold for two consecutive years before applying. Achieving HSI status will unlock access to resources and grants that will help deepen support systems for Latinx/e students and further strengthen the university's goal of fostering an inclusive campus culture. Latinx/e students make up approximately 29% of the incoming undergraduate class. Read the full article at calpoly.edu/news.

Student Club Supports Local Children Impacted by Cancer

Every summer, a group of local children head to a lakeside camp in Santa Barbara County for a week of bonding and fun. Unlike most summer camps, this one is run by the Cal Poly chapter of Kesem, a college-based nationwide organization designed to support kids whose parents or guardians have been impacted by cancer. The no-cost summer camp gives these children an opportunity to build a supportive community around a shared experience while also having fun. Read the full article at calpoly.edu/news.

Ask an Expert: How has AI Changed Misinformation

Since 2020, misinformation has become a dominant part of public online discourse: unequivocally false claims about the 2020 election, COVID-19, hurricanes and presidential candidates have swirled, driven further by the rise of AI. Cal Poly News sat down with Kim Bisheff, an assistant professor in Cal Poly's Journalism Department who studies how misinformation spreads online, for a chat about what digital media consumers face, how misinformation has changed — and what we can do about it. Behind the Scenes of Beautification at the Leaning Pine Arboretum

From tending to lush gardens to building accessible seating, students and faculty have been hard at work in Cal Poly's Leaning Pine Arboretum to prepare the five-acre living laboratory for visitors in the new academic year. "It's really a space for everyone," said Tiffany Faulstich, arboretum manager and Plant Sciences Department lecturer. She oversees a team of student employees who help the gardens thrive year round while guiding large-scale improvement projects. Over the last few months, she has worked with students to lay roughly 500 linear feet of accessible pathways throughout the gardens, creating a more accessible walking loop. Please join Administration and Finance leadership in welcoming Meggan to Cal Poly.

Celebrating Native American Heritage Month: Showcasing Cree Language in Library Discovery

This Native American Heritage Month, we are proud to feature our ILS and discovery systems' support for Cree syllabics. Highlighted in the Kennedy Library's collection, "The Memoirs of Miss Chief Eagle Testickle" exemplifies our technological capabilities and dedication to preserving Cree cultural heritage. These hardback volumes, primarily in English with sections in Cree, are available on the New Books shelf in Crandall Gym (Building 60). Created by Cree artist Kent Monkman and collaborator Gisèle Gordon, this work offers a transformative view of Turtle Island's history through the eyes of Monkman's alter ego, Miss Chief Eagle Testickle.

Campus Visits Update: CAFES Dean Candidate

New dates have been confirmed for campus visits for finalists in the search for the Dean of CAFES. The campus community is invited to attend open forums with three finalists during their visits that will take place Nov. 7-8, Nov. 12-13, and Nov. 14-15. Additional details on the open forums, including information on each finalist and a Zoom link for virtual participation, will be shared in advance.

Cal Poly Police: Discussion of Annual Report of Regulated Equipment Set for Nov. 13

The CSU systemwide Regulated Tools and Equipment Policy was adopted in response to Assembly Bill 481, which requires every law enforcement agency in California to publish certain information annually regarding specified equipment. CPPD will host a community engagement event to discuss information contained within its 2024 report at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13, in Building 36, Room 105, the Public Safety Training Room. The community engagement event is open to all students, faculty and staff at Cal Poly.

ASI Craft Center: Register for Fall Workshops

Did you miss out on registering for a six-week Craft Center course? No worries! Consider joining a workshop instead. These one- or two-day sessions offer a fantastic opportunity to try a new craft or improve a favorite skill. There are still a few spots available for select paint nights, stained glass workshops and weekend surfboard shaping sessions. bit.ly/ASICraftCenter
