#552062 - Assistant Professor, Agribusiness, CAFES-Agribusiness

Students to Gain Real-World Fire Management Experience Through Prescribed Burn

In collaboration with Cal Poly and California State Parks, CAL FIRE San Luis Obispo will conduct a joint-effort prescribed burn at the university's Escuela Ranch as part of its ongoing vegetation management plan. Weather permitting, about 30 acres of vegetation will be burned beginning around 10 a.m. Monday, Oct. 13. The carefully controlled effort will enhance fire safety, improve ecosystem health and provide valuable hands-on training opportunities for Cal Poly forest and fire sciences students, the California State Parks wildfire resilience team and CAL FIRE staff.

Stay Two Steps Ahead with Multi-Factor Authentication (MFA)

Cal Poly requires MFA to add an extra layer of protection to your account—but why stop there? Enable MFA on your personal accounts, too — especially those tied to sensitive data such as banking or email. Security keeps evolving, and new options like passkeys let you log in securely without a password, making them much harder to steal. Using MFA across your digital life strengthens your defenses, protects your privacy, and gives you peace of mind knowing your accounts are far more secure.

Complete NAGPRA Self-Assessment Survey by Nov. 4

As part of Cal Poly's legal and ethical obligation under NAGPRA and CalNAGPRA, all departments are asked to check spaces and report any Native American cultural items or human remains. Items should be reported regardless of how or when they were acquired — including purchases, gifts, recovery from archaeological excavations or unknown sources. When checking spaces, please do not move or touch human remains, items or collections. Document what you know based on existing records and visual inspections. The survey includes review of space both on campus (offices, classrooms, display cases, etc.) and off campus (storage facilities, remote locations).

Cal Poly Launches Modular Stacking Phase for New Student Housing

Cal Poly is starting the modular stacking phase for Building A of the new student housing program. A public viewing platform near Fremont Hall will be available through the end of the year, allowing the campus community to safely watch construction progress. For those unable to attend in person, a live camera feed will be available. The stacking of the first modular units will begin the week of Oct. 20, continuing at a rate of two units per week throughout the fall.

Freedom of Expression: It's Your Right. Voice It.

Cal Poly has launched the Freedom of Expression campaign to highlight free speech as a cornerstone of learning and civic engagement. Faculty and staff are encouraged to share this initiative with students and colleagues. The campaign emphasizes that all Mustangs have the right to speak, protest and organize—along with the responsibility to do so safely, respectfully and lawfully. Free expression is essential to growth, and the university encourages constructive dialogue across different views.
