Cal Poly Student to Serve with Peace Corps in El Salvador

Cal Poly student Anabel Fredman (Biology, '26) will serve with the Peace Corps as a Youth Development Coordinator in El Salvador for the next two and a half years. In this role, Fredman will work with local schools and communities to co-facilitate community-based programs and activities that support life-skills development among Salvadoran youth. She will also mentor students in long-term life planning and collaborate with parents and community leaders to establish and sustain youth-led community projects.

Chef Advances to NACUFS Challenge

Chef Arthur Dulin of Cal Poly Campus Dining has been selected to compete in the 2026 NACUFS Pacific Regional Culinary Challenge, earning a spot through a juried recipe submission. He will represent Cal Poly in a live regional competition March 24 at the University of Washington, where chefs prepare original dishes featuring mandatory ingredients under timed conditions. The competition highlights culinary excellence in collegiate dining, with regional winners advancing to the national conference later this year.

Access NACE Resources Through February 2027

Cal Poly faculty, staff, administrators and student employees may access Cal Poly's institutional membership with the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE) through February 2027 by submitting a membership request form. The membership is supported by Cal Poly Opportunity Fee (CPOF) funding through the Office of the Associate Provost for Student Success, in collaboration with Career Services. This resource supports Cal Poly's implementation of the CSU Student Success Framework by providing research and best practices that strengthen career readiness, equity and student outcomes. Questions? Email careerservices@calpoly.edu.
